Preuss Model United Nations announcement to develop "Good Global Citizens": Victory at Yorktown

On this fateful day in 1781, the United States won a decisive victory against the British at Yorktown. The British garrison stationed at Yorktown, severely short on supplies and troops, were forced to surrender to the larger Franco-American force. The Patriot victory against the British in Yorktown mostly ended fighting in the American colonies and opened up peace negotiations. After the signing of the Treaty of Paris two years later in 1783, the United States formally became recognized as an independent nation. (Boquiren 10/19)
