The Rho Kappa Social Studies Honor Society presents This Day in History:

Pope Julius II della Rovere (reigned 1503-1513), died on this day in 1513. Eight years earlier, he entrusted Michelangelo to construct his tomb in Saint Peter's Basilica. The tomb was originally meant to be a 3-story freestanding monument with 47 figures carved of Carrara marble. It was to be a representation of the Christian world. However, when the Pope died, it was agreed that his tomb would be smaller and no longer freestanding. (End Date: 2/20/20 Greco)
