National School Counseling Week

Good morning and welcome to the final day of National School Counseling Week. For our last day talking about how school counselors help students thrive, we would like to share a wonderful quote with you from the poet Maya Angelou: "My mission in life is not merely to survive, but to thrive; and to do so with some passion, some compassion, some humor and some style."

This is our hope for each of you. That you are passionate about learning and discover what brings you joy. That you approach your peers with compassion. That you pass through daily life with good humor, bringing your own style and sense of self. And that you follow your arrow wherever it leads. We can't wait to see what each of you does. We are grateful to be part of your journey.

Go. Be amazing. Thrive.
